2. The scope of application is different As the carrier of information transmission, optical termination box for fiber optic cable has become an important pillar of modern communication with optical fiber

A black, cylindrical, waterproof electronic device, likely a depth gauge or sensor, is shown against a white background. The device has a cable attached to one end and two black caps. One cap is attached to the cable, and the other is detached and lying next to the device. The device has a textured, ribbed surface.
