

Value of Fiber Optic Cable Bond Issuance

Overview

A newcomer to the asset-backed securities (ABS) market, fiber securitizations are gaining momentum with issuance possibly as high as $5 billion in 2024. These ABS feature relatively unique collateral that tends to be protected by high barriers to entry, strong brand value, or both. Moreover, they are largely insulated from tariffs, which is particularly appealing in the current environment. While previous fiber ABS transactions were secured by longer-term contracts, recent. Fitch Ratings - Chicago - 02 Jun 2025: Fitch Ratings has assigned ratings and Rating Outlooks to Beanfield Securitization Issuer L. Telecom investment grade bonds are corporate debt issued by wireless carriers, wireline operators, cable companies, tower owners, and international telecom holding companies that carry credit ratings of BBB minus or higher from S&P and Fitch, or Baa3 or higher from Moody's.
